Dear Tekton Community,

We are pleased to announce our forthcoming merger with Coltivare. It is scheduled to officially take place on 1/1/2026.

With the help of this merger, we will be able to provide you with many new services and areas of expertise in the future. We look forward to discussing those in more depth with you.

All of our staff are being retained in their current roles as well, and we will continue to provide you with the same services and high-quality customer service we currently offer. This will also include no change to your current fees and costs associated with our organization.

If you have any questions, please feel free to reach out to our COO James Kenny at TektonConstruction@gmail.com. Our new organization will still be located in West Lafayette, Indiana.

We deeply appreciate your continued partnership and support, and are thrilled to continue doing business with you.

Regards,

Taylor Tekton
